Messenger (A private Ciruculation)

Dearly beloved in Christ

Greetings in the precious name of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ

Nearly half of this year has passed from our life and we are in a mood to welcome one more summer season.

Past experiences help us to find newness in the future. If we fail to find newness in our life then our life becomes monotonous.

It is the time of academic year ending and we have to praise God for the divine protection and guidance that our children experienced throughout the year. As per the Church Almanac, the first Sunday of June is observed as Educational Sunday. All parents are acutely aware of the importance of education in today's world. They are keen to provide the best possible educational facilities to their children. But most people subscribe to the myth that education is what happens only in schools and colleges. So they assume that their role in educating their children is limited to getting them admitted to prestigious educational institutions. Many times, children struggle to understand the meaning and purpose of life in relation to God and world. There is a need today to educate parents to impart biblical knowledge to their children sensitively and creatively.

Sadly, the current model of education breeds apathetic elite with the culture of individualism. It upholds the myth that happiness consists in limitless material consumption. Thus consumerism is viewed as an inherently good ideology, wherein property, wealth and pleasure are highly important than people and just relationships. The failure to promote the spirit of selfless service is one of the foremost flaws of education today. The more educated a person gets, the less willing to serve he tends to be. This individualistic view of life has serious consequences not only for the society but also for the families that constitute it. Ironically, its worst victims are parents who are neglected by their children when they need love and care most.

One day a poor man asked a Monk, "Why am I so poor?"

Monk said, "You do not learn to give."

The man said, "I am destitute & have nothing. How do I practice giving?"

Monk smiled compassionately and told him, "You don't need to be rich to give. Giving doesn't require money. Even in poverty, with no material possessions to your name, you can still give."

The man asked, "How is this possible? What is considered 'giving' then?"

Monk said: "Let me teach you the ways to give without needing any money at all. You have a few things to give: -

The Face: with which you can give a smile

The Mouth: by which you can praise or comfort others;

The Heart: This can open up to others;

The Eyes: which can look at others with the eyes of goodness; -

The Body: This can be used to help others."

Wisdom makes us aware that the richness of life lies not in how much we possess rather how much we contribute to the betterment of this world.

Once again I am happy to welcome Jacob P Thomas Achen and family to the fellowship of Houston Trinity Family. May God grant His sustaining grace and guidance to achen, so that he could diligently carry out the God given task entrusted upon him.

May God bless us all.
